

Automatically assigned system level settings

Settings at the system level will either be automatically available within all your companies or will need to be assigned manually. In this article, we'll look at all the settings that are automatically assigned.

How it works

Settings at the system level are configured exactly the same as at the company level. The only difference is that when configured at the system level the configuration will cascade down to all the companies associated with the account. The individual company administrators can then either use the assigned settings or configure their own.
